

Politics

Why this course is right for you

Politics helps us to understand our world by looking at the way that governments work and the ideas behind them. It also explains how countries work together to tackle some of the greatest problems facing our world, including poverty and climate change.

The A Level Politics courses will help you to develop skills of analysis and critical evaluation. You will be encouraged to question evidence, weigh arguments and defend your own point of view, both in writing and through discussion. You will also have regular opportunities to develop your skills of debate and presentation.

If you enjoy argument and debate, this is the place to find it. If you want to make informed choices in your daily life, you need to understand politics.

Beyond A Levels

This A Level will provide you with excellent preparation for degrees in Economics, History, Politics and Philosophy. A Level Politics will also equip you with vital skills of analysis and evaluation, academic writing and critical thinking.

If you would like to go into Law, A Level Politics will give you a grounding in rights, justice and the legal systems of the UK and EU. If your main interest is in the sciences, this qualification will provide an excellent contrast, developing skills and knowledge which will be relevant to you throughout life.
